Construction & Demolition (C & D) Waste Management Plan Program Requirements

The California Waste Management Act of 1989 requires the City of Clovis to implement a program that reduces and/or diverts the diversion and recycling of construction and demolition debris.

At least sixty-five percent (65%) of waste tonnage from a covered project shall be diverted from disposal. There are three thresholds for covered projects. They are:

1. Demolition projects with total costs of the project equal to or greater than five thousand dollars ($5,000). These shall obtain approval of a waste management plan prior to permit issuance and prior to any demolition beginning.
2. Existing buildings with construction and/or renovation activities with total costs equal to or exceeding fifty thousand dollars ($50,000). These shall obtain approval of a waste management plan prior to permit issuance and prior to any construction activity beginning.
3. New buildings shall obtain approval of a waste management plan prior to permit issuance and prior to any construction activity beginning.

There are two compliance methods for construction and demolition debris hauling. They are:

1. Using an authorized C & D Hauler (See approved hauler list)
2. Self-Haul C & D debris.

Authorized C & D haulers provide the required documentation to the city of Clovis prior to both the permit issuance and building final.

A self-haul project will need to submit a Waste Management Plan prior to permit issuance, and a Waste Management Report along with the weight tickets shall be provided to the inspector at the final inspection before the final inspection is approved.
